

Hilarious New Novel Shows Dog Training Can Work Equally Well On Men

West Palm Beach, FL - Dog Training The American Male is being called one of the funniest novels to be published in years, so it's no surprise the book is already receiving offers from Hollywood. Described as Sheryl Sandberg's Lean In meets a laugh-out-loud Fifty Shades of Grey, the story centers around Dr. Nancy Beach, a relationship counselor and radio talk show host who can't seem to make her own relationships work, sending her credibility and ratings into the toilet.

When Jacob, her new live-in boyfriend brings home a 120-pound German Shepherd he rescues from the Pound (typical man – she had wanted a little white foofoo dog), Nancy flips out... until she realizes the dog trainer's techniques can actually be used to housebreak both the dog and her boyfriend. Thus begins a hilarious social experiment that every couple and dog owner can identify with.

For women, the book is an empowering lesson in controlling the male ego. For men – it's a fun read because... well, because it's true! Says author L.A. Knight: "The key to a successful male-female relationship involves communication. Unfortunately, men and women think differently and communicate in completely different languages... just like humans and animals. Most men believe they are the Alpha dog, when in fact women have been endowed with the ability to train their spouse. Therefore, if a woman can learn to communicate to her significant Y chromosome using the tips learned in this book, her life gets easier overnight!" says Knight.

Tom Mayer of The Mountain Times writes, "Dog Training the American Male is a riotous romp through relationships of the young, the old and the restless. L.A. Knight offers a fresh farce replete with a cast of well-drawn characters, fast-paced wit and merging cinematic storylines that triumph as a novel, but would feel equally right on a London stage, as a Netflix original, or in a theater near you."
